FOR MISS EDNA OLMSTEAD.

Mrs. Georgia Zimmerman was the charming hostess to a number of young people Thursday, January 8, at a miscellaneous shower given for Miss Edna Olmstead whose marriage to Mr. Walter Candong of California will occur next Wednesday, January 21, at the Olmstead home on West Twenty-fourth street.

Many beautiful and useful gifts were tendered Miss Olmstead by a host of friends. Dainty pieces of hand-embroidered linens, silverware, cutglass and various fancy articles were on display.

Following an evening spent at games, vocal and instrumental music Mrs. Zimmerman served a delicious luncheon. The dining room was prettily decorated in red and green. Festoons from the corners of the room were fastened at the center chandelier where a large wedding bell had been placed. Sprays of ferns were effectively arranged.

At a late hour the party dispersed, not before wishing Miss Olmstead happiness and declaring their hostess a charming one.

BRILLIANT AFFAIR LAST EVENING.

The fourteenth annual ball of Perseverance lodge No. 98, Brotherhood of Firemen and Engineemen was given last night at the New Colonial. The attendance was conceded to be the largest of the season, the spacious hall being crowded. The committee, however, was large enough to look after the entertainment of their guests in an efficient manner and this fact was much appreciated by all.

The decorative color scheme was in the lodge colors, red, green and white and a network of streamers formed a canopy over the dancing surface. Numerous flags of the contrasting colors were hung from the rafters and a large engine bell was hung in the center of the overhead decorations. Shovels, coal picks and firemen's brooms also had a prominent place. At the southeast corner of the hall was placed a big headlight showing the insignia-button of the lodge, many times enlarged. At the northeast corner, was shown a tunnel and snowed in the Sierra Nevada mountains above Bonner Lake. Emerging from the tunnel was a miniature engine. The whole scene was well pictured and many complimentary remarks were received by the committee on its realistic appearance.

The program contained 27 dance numbers with specially chosen melodies, which were played by Crawford's orchestra. In addition to the name of the tunes which were played by the orchestra, on the program was printed a series of questions and answers which would be used by a tourist making a round trip to the coast. On the inside of the back cover page was printed the following poem:

Will the Lights be Green?
Oft when I feel my engine swerve,
As o'er strange rails we fare,
I strain my eyes around the curve,
For what awaits us there.

When swift and free she carries me
Through unknown yards at e'en,
I look along the line to see
That all the lamps are green.

A blue light "Rip Track" crippled car,
The yellow light signals "SLOW,"
The red light is a danger light,
The green light, "let her go."

Again the open fields I roam,
And then the night is fair,
I gaze up in the starry dome,
And wonder what is there.

For who can speak for those who dwell
Behind the curving sky?
No man has ever lived to tell
Just what it means to die.

Swift towards life's terminal I tread,
The run seems short between;
God only knows what's at the end—
I hope the lamps are green.

The punch booth was decorated with pink and white roses and carnations and delicious fruit and claret punch was prepared and served by Gus Braun and Reuben Sanders. The dance closed at 1 o'clock and was pronounced by all to be a splendid social and financial success.

LANDGRAFF-KARBUSH WEDDING.

Promptly at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Miss Antoinette Landgraaf and Mr. Joseph F. Karbush were married in the St. Joseph's Catholic church in the presence of a few friends and relatives.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's processional march, the bride and groom attended by Miss Florence Cooney and Mr. Blaine Wall entered the church and as the marriage ceremony was being performed, Miss Margaret McNulty sang "Oh, Promise Me," and during the celebration of the nuptial mass she sang "Ave Maria." The bride wore a dark blue traveling suit with hat to match and carried a bouquet of violets. Mr. Karbush was attired in the conventional black.

Immediately following the ceremony a delicious wedding breakfast was served in the pretty dining room of the Virginia, covers being laid for the following: Father O'Reardon, Mr. and Mrs. Karbush, Mrs. N. Baker, sister of the bride, Mr. Blaine Wall and Miss Florence Cooney, Mabel Krauss and Margaret McNulty.

The happy couple left on the Los Angeles Limited for an extended honeymoon trip through California, Washington and Oregon, and after February 1 will be at home to their friends at Salt Lake City.

Miss Landgraaf was very popular among Ogden's younger social set and for the past few months had been employed in the local office of the forestry service. Mr. Karbush is a traveling salesman for the Underwood Typewriter company and is prominent locally.

Best wishes from numerous friends follow them.

STRANGE ACTION OF A WOMAN CLAIMING TWO CHILDREN

At the instance and request of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nicholson and to quiet a wordy expression of differences between Mrs. Nicholson and her mother, Mrs. Ruella P. Curtis, at the union depot yesterday afternoon, Sheriff DeVine detained Mrs. Curtis from going to Salt Lake with two small children, a girl and a boy, claimed by Mrs. Nicholson.

Mrs. Curtis and the children were taken to the sheriff's office and subsequently induced to accompany Attorney David Jensen to his home for the night. It was at first thought to be a case of attempted kidnapping, but upon inquiry found to be purely a matter for the civil division of the courts, as both parties showed adoption papers for the children. The session being considered nine points in law, Mrs. Curtis, the grandmother, has the advantage today, but Attorney Chez, who has been employed by the Nicholson people began habeas corpus proceedings in the district court today and the same is to be heard Saturday.

Last fall Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson came to Ogden where the children took up quarters at the Colonial, renting house and on the same day, only a few hours later, Mrs. Curtis came and was given quarters by Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson in the same rooms. Since that time there has been more or less friction between the parties. Mrs. Curtis claims that Mrs. Nicholson is the mother of the children, Kella and Albert, aged 9 and 5 years, but that Mr. Nicholson is not the father. She claims also that Mrs. Nicholson gave up the children to her in Topeka, Kansas, where letters of adoption were issued.

Subsequently, however, Mrs. Curtis says, Mrs. Nicholson fraudulently gained possession of the children through some form of court proceeding and came to Utah with them. She followed and has lived with the family in Ogden since the arrival. Both parties have claimed the children and considerable trouble has occurred between them. Mr. Nicholson has paid the room rent all the time, while Mrs. Curtis has sought aid from charitable institutions and she was furnished money by the board of county commissioners to pay her fare to Salt Lake. Since arriving in Ogden, the proprietor of the Colonial says Mr. Nicholson has been working at his trade as a horseshoer and Mrs. Nicholson has also had employment. Mrs. Curtis advises the county attorney that Mrs. Nicholson is eager to regain possession of the children to get control of certain property in Kansas which came to Mrs. Curtis through an estate of her mother and which she placed in the names of the children under the advice of a lawyer in Topeka. She thinks there is no other reason for Mrs. Nicholson's finally there had been a reconciliation and all were living in the same rooms. She had a letter from the Denver Post congratulating her on recovering the children.

Mrs. Curtis at times acts strangely. Two months ago she called at the Standard office and related all her troubles, telling the family history. She said her daughter had had four husbands; that the children have been repeatedly kidnapped by Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson, and she had followed them from Omaha to Los Angeles and back to Salt Lake and Ogden; and finally there had been a reconciliation and all were living in the same rooms. She had a letter from the Denver Post congratulating her on recovering the children.

FIGHT IN A DANCE PRODUCES TWO VERY BLACK EYES

Six misdemeanor and an affront to the court, occupied the morning in municipal court.

Victor Wetson, John Vander etter and Tom Fay, drunks, received suspended sentences. All three were arrested yesterday afternoon.

E. Schultz, charged with cruelty to animals, pleaded not guilty, was convicted and fined $10.
Schultz was arrested at 11:30 a. m. yesterday by Patrolman Hearn for leaving a horse on the street without properly protection from the weather. He had as witnesses H. W. Gates and Charles Yeaman. The city's witnesses were Phillip H. Kumber and Patrolman James Hearn. Kunder is the proprietor of a confectionery store on lower Twenty-fifth street. He was the first witness called and he said that the horse had stood in front of his business place from 7:30 to 11 a. m. that it was blanketed, but that the blanket was wet through and the animal was shivering with the cold. Patrolman Hearn said that his attention had been called to the animal and that he had taken it to a livery stable and had then arrested the driver.

The defendant based his case on the fact that the animal was blanketed and his two witnesses testified along that line. The judge read the law relating to such cases and then rendered his decision.

William Furniss and Willard Jess, charged with disturbing the peace, were next called. The two were arrested early Wednesday morning. Jess appeared in that day's session of court and pleaded guilty, but Furniss was unable to appear and the case was set for today. Furniss pleaded guilty this morning. The two men had been fighting and both were still in bad condition, each having a very black eye and other bruises on the face.

Furniss was first permitted to tell his story. He said that the trouble started at a dance Tuesday night. Some one had hit him in the eye as he was passing down the lobby of the dance hall. He went into the dressing room a minute or two later and, thinking that Jess was his assailant, retaliated by hitting him in the eye. They were separated and shortly afterward he was told to leave the hall. This he did but in the meantime he had been told that Jess was not the one who had hit him and he decided to look him up and beg his pardon. He went down Twenty-fifth street with a friend and the two met Jess and some of his friends. Jess hit him in the mouth and from then on there was "something doing."

According to the story of Jess, Furniss was the aggressor both times. Irving Emmett, who informed the officers of the trouble, said that he had seen the men fighting, that it was, in fact, a general mixup when he arrived on the scene. He had separated them three times and was then held by persons in the crowd who wanted to see the fight finished. He had finally gotten away and telephoned for the police. He said that each time he separated the two men, that Jess followed his opponent, and renewed the combat.

Attorney Gordon, appeared in court on behalf of Jess and interrupted the trial several times, while others had the floor. When Judge Reeder finished his summing up of the case, he was asked by the attorney if he desired to say anything. The reply was taken by the court to mean that Gordon thought his remarks would not be given proper consideration. The judge took exception to this and informed the attorney that his action verged close on to contempt of court, and he advised him in the future to be more careful.

The judge then said that in his opinion, the punishment that the two defendants had given each other was sufficient to satisfy the ends of justice.

He warned them not to be mixed up in any more affairs of the kind. He suspended the sentence on Jess and gave Furniss a six months' suspended sentence.

Nellie St. Clair, a vagrant, forfeited $50 bail.
